Forward

Calvin College is deeply committed to the premise that Christians are called to engage in transformative service: to be agents for a redeemed Creation. This book is an account of some of the ways Calvin College faculty have attempted to be faithful to this mission. It highlights the ways in which the faculty have served their academic professions, but also the many other communities to which we bear responsibility – not least of which is the Church. Here is a record of the many ways Calvin professors have attempted to advance the frontiers of knowledge, pursue useful research, develop new artistic and musical expressions, and much more. We see here a concern for the city, the nation, and the world, a concern rooted in a vision of the shalom that lies at the heart of the Kingdom of God. We submit this record with a humble desire to be held accountable for the privileges we have been given, and a sincere hope that we have been faithful to our collective calling. This particular book is intended to cover the period from July 1, 1998, through June 30, 1999.
