Dear Symposium participants,

We warmly welcome each one of you who have come from so many places around the world to the 29th annual Symposium on Worship. We are thankful for the opportunity to host you at Calvin College and Calvin Theological Seminary, the home of the Calvin Institute of Christian Worship (CICW) and the Center for Excellence in Preaching (CEP), and pray that our time together may be rich with prayer and worship, learning and fellowship. We live stream all the worship services and plenary sessions. We invite your congregation back home to join this learning via the web (worship.calvin.edu).

We especially welcome those who have come for the first time (about half of you!) from a wide range of churches and schools, including many students from across North America and more than 100 overseas international guests from around the world (see page 108). We are especially grateful for the stunning range of different roles that you play: pastor, artist, musician, teacher, youth leader, church educator, congregational elder or board member, justice advocate, missionary, professor, and many more.

As we worship and learn together, we invite you to notice, savor, and share key phrases that point to important trajectories of learning for all of us—phrases like:

- universal design
- traditioned innovation
- Trinitarian prayer
- radical hospitality
- intercultural learning
- global Christianity
- winsome orthodoxy
- baptismal spirituality
- cruciform beauty
- eucharistic way of life
- disciplined creativity
- and more...

These pithy phrases point to essential wisdom for living as faithful disciples of Jesus, provided that we take the time to explore their meaning together. Each phrase has potential as a hashtag—and even more as a way of life. Perhaps we can make them contagious on social media during our time together, and then weave them into our life in congregations and communities back home.

What other phrases would you add to this list? We’d love to learn from you! We’ll be learning from you on Facebook and Twitter, as well as from your emails and conference evaluation forms.

Each one of these phrases has emerged out of learning conversations like this over the past few years, and we look forward to how the Holy Spirit may use this learning time to continue to form and teach us.

In Christ’s service,

Scott Hoezee, director, Center for Excellence in Preaching
Kristen Verhulst, program manager, Calvin Symposium on Worship
John D. Witvliet, director, Calvin Institute of Christian Worship

Free gift in honor of Chip Stam (1953–2011)

Calvin Institute of Christian Worship • John D. Witvliet

Worship in the Joy of the Lord is a curated collection of over 300 quotations on the deep meaning and purpose of Christian public worship designed to inspire, challenge, and equip worshipers and worship leaders to be transformed by the renewing gospel of Jesus Christ.

Chip Stam was a gift to the church. This anthology is a deep treasure chest full of Chip’s carefully assembled reflections. It is an invaluable volume for anyone who treasures Christian worship. —Constance M. Cherry, Indiana Wesleyan University

From Aristotle to Wesley, and everybody in between and before and after, Chip Stam has done us the irreplaceable service of gathering worship quotes so that we can drink from the wisdom of the ages and ponder the saints’ insights. These extracts are gems that I will treasure and continue to apply to the Church and her worship. I love this book! —Marva J. Dawn, Christians Equipped for Ministry

This collection of worship quotes displays Chip’s unceasing desire to worship the Savior, proclaim the gospel that changed him, and encourage that passion in others. —Bob Kauflin, Sovereign Grace Music

What a rich resource of God-centered, biblically sound and theologically profound reflections! Our brother Chip has provided us a feast of gleanings from a wonderful variety of different authors and sources. A fountain of devotional resources for every worshiper (and, with the index, an invaluable sourcebook for the desk of the pastor or worship leader), this collection bubbles with life and wisdom and love for Christ—as did Chip himself. Drink deeply from this well and be refreshed! —Ron Man, First Evangelical Church, Memphis, Tennessee

Chip Stam was not only a source of much personal wisdom about worship that glorifies God, but he also had the gift of pointing us to other sources of wisdom. We miss him, but the gift lives on in his wonderful collection of gems about bringing more joy into our worshiping lives! —Richard Mouw, Fuller Theological Seminary

In Memoriam (see page 117) remembers with gratitude the lives of former Symposium presenters.
You are invited to two art receptions during Symposium:

- Thursday, January 28, 5:00–6:45 p.m. (Woodlawn Ministry Center)
  View Arise, Shine, for Your Light Has Come and join a gallery tour at 6:00 p.m.
- Friday, January 29, 5:30–7:00 p.m. (Center Art Gallery)
  View Come to the Table, Transitional Dwellings, and Arise, Shine. Refreshments provided.

Come to the Table

This exhibit includes thirty-five works celebrating both the rich community gathered at the Table of Fellowship and the privilege of meeting with God at the Table of Communion. From Abraham entertaining angels, to Christ’s Last Supper with his disciples, to the great Marriage Feast of the Lamb at the end of time, the table is a rich biblical metaphor. Indeed, the promise of Revelation 19 is that human history will culminate around a table where the people of God are all present. God’s Table is a place of welcome, justice, abundance, and worship. This is a Christians in the Visual Arts traveling exhibition.

Center Art Gallery 1
9 a.m.–9 p.m., Thursday and Friday
9 a.m.–4 p.m., Saturday

Transitional Dwellings: Sergio Gomez

“If, at its best, art is an invitation to relationship, the works of Sergio Gomez are bold and complex provocations to a series of interconnected meetings. Gomez’ use of the human figure grounds his work in the depth of human concerns; his art has our shared plight of suffering, of searching, and of triumph at its center. Far from a dualism that posits a separation between body and transcendence, Gomez’s artful technique underscores how art points to the indissoluble unity of what is matter and what is spirit.”

(Cecilia González-Andrieu, Bridge to Wonder, p.162)

Center Art Gallery 2
9 a.m.–9 p.m., Thursday and Friday
9 a.m.–4 p.m., Saturday
Arise, Shine, for Your Light Has Come

This exhibit is a celebration and reflection on passages from the book of Isaiah. Many pieces are being shown for the first time. Artists include: Timothy R. Botts, Wayne Forte, Jeanne Logan, Chris Overvoorde, Matt Plescher, and Julie Quinn. Arise, Shine is hosted by Eyekons (exhibit table #1), Calvin College Center Art Gallery, Woodlawn Ministry Center, Calvin Institute of Christian Worship, and the Calvin Campus Ministry office. This exhibit is held in a number of venues:

- Center Art Gallery hallway
- Calvin Chapel narthex and Hekman Library Lobby
- Woodlawn Ministry Center, 3190 Burton Street (9 a.m.–7 p.m., Thursday; 9 a.m.–4 p.m., Friday–Saturday)

Navaho Canyon, by artist Don West, is our theme image for the Worship Symposium. The original piece is made of oil, acrylic, recycled materials, canvas, wood, and steel mesh.

We asked members of the Calvin community what themes this piece has helped them see anew in the book of Isaiah. Here are some responses:

- desert, valley, and mountain metaphors
- desolation (sand) and abundance (turquoise)
- distance, height, and depth
- heaven and earth
- radiating light
- a view (map) of the world...

The Covenant Fine Arts Center Auditorium liturgical banners, Canyon Reflection, were designed by Betsy Steele Halstead and made in response to Don’s work. They are 3’ wide by 11’, 13.5’, and 16’ long. Materials include: burlap, tulle, netting, yarn, twine, hot glue and glitter, beads, buttons, and birch twigs.

What do you see from the book of Isaiah in this rich selection of artworks?

_Seminar B_  1:30–3:30 p.m. (seminar options begin on page 12)
10:15–12:15 p.m.  Seminar A

Calvin College Chapel, Undercroft
Eric Mathis, Paul Ryan, with Nate Glasper Jr. and students from Calvin College and Anima at Samford University

Learning to lead worship encompasses what you do and who you are. It entails spirituality as much as it requires skill. In this seminar, we will explore two vital practices of worship leadership: choosing songs and presenting scripture. Along the way we will discuss how we engage these practices as a matter of discipleship, identify cultural trends that resist our efforts, and recommend habits for faithful and healthy leadership.

A2:  Preparing to Remember the Reformation
Prince Conference Center, Great Hall
Robert J. Batastini, Peter Choi, Karin Maag, David McNutt, Mark Noll, Lisa Weaver, and Joyce Ann Zimmerman, moderated John D. Witvliet

In 2017, churches around the world, both Protestant and Catholic, will mark the 500th anniversary of the Protestant Reformation. How we mark this milestone will say as much about us, and our own sense of identity, as it does about the events of five centuries ago. Indeed, the history of past milestone anniversaries (100, 200, 300, and 400 years ago) reveals stunningly different ways of remembering this history—and some crucial lessons about what to avoid this time around. Come for a fast-paced tour of histories of the Reformation and vigorous discussion by both Protestant and Catholic leaders about how we can do our remembering in profoundly sanctifying ways.

A3:  Solid Resources for Lively Preaching
Calvin Theological Seminary, Auditorium
Jennifer Ackerman, Cornelius Plantinga Jr., and Frank A. Thomas, moderated by Scott Hoezee

Preachers know that unless they receive fresh input from good resources, sooner or later their weekly output in the sermon will get thinner and thinner. But where are the solid resources on which the preacher can rely? What best practices exist to enrich preaching? In this seminar Jennifer Ackerman will discuss the vital role of peer learning to keep preachers fresh, even as she highlights a number of resources being used by the Micah Group project of peer learning groups. Neal Plantinga and Frank Thomas will also present ideas from their experience of resourcing preachers. Plantinga will speak of his role in leading the “Imaginative Reading for Creative Preaching” seminars and Thomas of his work with the “Preaching as Celebration” digital lecture series. Together the presenters will give seminar participants hands-on ideas on how to engage the resources and opportunities that are available.
A4: Best Contemporary Worship Music You May Not Know

Covenant Fine Arts Center, Recital Hall
David M. Bailey, Bruce Benedict, Zac Hicks, Emmett G. Price III, Wen Reagan, and Sandra Maria Van Opstal, moderated by Monique Ingalls

In the age of the internet, we all have access to hundreds of thousands of songs. Hundreds more are written each week. There are dozens of remarkable songs written that are biblically faithful, musically excellent, theologically robust, liturgically fitting, and singable by ordinary people—but they can be hard to find! For this session, we have asked a group of resourceful, imaginative leaders to search the globe for fabulous examples of songs to sing, and to share with us not only songs to try back home, but better ways of finding them, for in this internet age, we are all “curators.” Come to sharpen your powers of discernment.

A5: Rejoicing in Lament: Wrestling With Incurable Cancer, Cancerous Racism, and Life in Christ

Covenant Fine Arts Center, Room 135
J. Todd Billings, Mark Charles, and Mary Hulst, moderated by C.J. Kingdom-Grier

Todd Billing’s Rejoicing in Lament (Brazos Press) has opened up profound pastoral conversations for hundreds of families struggling with a cancer diagnosis. The book has significant implications for worship, challenging congregations to follow the lead of the Psalms in practicing candid lament as an essential aspect of deeply joyful worship. The first hour of this session will probe what Todd and his readers are learning about lament, and then our discussion will turn toward the practice of prophetic lament in the face of the cancerous racism that continues to shape so much of contemporary life—in nearly every country around the world. Be assured: the point of this session is the recovery of profound Easter-shaped joy in worship, the only kind of joy that matters.

A6: Worship and Citizenship in an Age of Divisive Politics

Prince Conference Center, Willow Room
Matthew Kaemingk, Judith Laoyan-Mosomos, Richard J. Mouw, and Anne Zaki, moderated by Kevin den Dulk

One of our callings as Christians is to live as resourceful and redemptive citizens of the countries in which we live—a vexing challenge in an age of political division in so many countries around the world represented at the Symposium. How should preaching, public prayer, and other aspects of worship relate to this? How can music and other artworks contribute to sanctifying and redemptive approaches? How does worship form us for faithful citizenship without becoming politicized? What might this look like not only in the United States and Canada, but also in Cairo and Singapore?
A7:  Wisdom for Leading through Changes in Worship in Diverse Communities
Meeter Center Lecture Hall
Michael C. Chen, Steven Guthrie, John Huizinga, Maria Monteiro, moderated by Kathy Smith

Is your worshiping community facing change in worship and looking for wisdom and advice? Do you believe change is needed in your worship and wonder how to initiate it in healthy ways? In this session a panel of leaders who have introduced and managed change in worship in very different worshiping communities will share their wisdom, stories and best practices. From smaller and larger churches and universities, these leaders have experienced the joys and challenges of leading authentic worship in changing communities that vary denominationally, racially, in size, and in local context. The panel will be moderated by Kathy Smith, manager for the Vital Worship Grants Program, and will include representatives of two universities and two congregations that have engaged in Vital Worship grant projects.

A8:  The Formative Power of Art and Architecture in Worship
Covenant Fine Arts Center, Room 222
Michael J. Crosbie and Lisa De Boer

Hear from two experts whose work puts them in touch with a wide variety of worshiping communities across North America. First, art historian Lisa DeBoer will share insights from her forthcoming book, The Visual Arts in the Worshiping Church (Eerdmans), about how Orthodox, Catholic, and Protestant worshipers relate to the meaning of art in such different ways. Then, Michael Crosbie, editor of Faith and Form, will take us on a memorable tour of recently built or renovated award-winning worship spaces, taking note of the underlying motivation and artistic vision of master architects and the congregations they work with. This is an ideal session not only for artists and architects, but also for people engaged in other forms of ministry, especially those who are eager learners about the cultures that shape communities.

A9:  The Artistry of Scripture for Biblical Storytellers
Spoelhof Center, Lab Theater
Jeff Barker and Northwestern College Drama Ministries Ensemble

Our primary book is not just a book! It’s meant to get off the page. Come and learn different ways we can present the Bible verbatim. Professor Barker is encouraging the church in why and how to reclaim the voice, action, and artistry of scripture. Jeff is a playwright and author of the book The Storytelling Church. His Northwestern College students will join in this morning full of activities and performances surrounding biblical storytelling (in solo and groups). Bring a memorized scripture to share.
1:30–3:30 p.m. Seminar B

Calvin College Chapel, Undercroft

Eric Mathis, Paul Ryan, with Emily Snider Andrews and students from Calvin College and Samford University

Worship leaders rely on resources. Choosing a song or selecting scripture can be as easy as the click of a mouse. But in our digital age, there are two resources that have stood the test of time: the hymnal and the lectionary. Whether in physical or virtual form, they root the worship leader within the church across time and place and provide a framework for continued growth in skill and spirituality. In this seminar, we will outline techniques for using the hymnal and the lectionary as vital resources for contemporary worship ministry and discipleship.

B2: The Sermon: Making It Work (Every Week!)
Calvin Theological Seminary, Auditorium

Mary Hulst and Peter Jonker, moderated by Scott Hoezee

Preachers know that Sundays are relentless—there seems to be one every week. Mary Hulst and Peter Jonker are every-week preachers, too; each of whom has recently written a book to help preachers tackle their daunting task successfully week after week. Peter Jonker will consider particularly how finding a controlling image is a powerful tool for propelling a sermon forward and for speaking to the listener’s imagination. Mary Hulst will help preachers recover basic tools that will keep sermons from going off the rails (and how to put them back on the rails in case things start going bad on any given week!). This seminar will be practical and focused on the wonderful, if challenging, task of proclaiming God’s Word to God’s people.

B3: Worship Leader as Pastoral Musician
Covenant Fine Arts Center, Recital Hall

David M. Bailey, Rawn Harbor, Monique Ingalls, Wen Reagan, Sandra Maria Van Opstal, and Ed Willmington, moderated by Zac Hicks

Musicians who lead worship are not merely performers, directors, coordinators, or music industry peddlers. We are primarily pastoral people—priestly leaders who shape the prayers and acclamations of God’s people. This vision for the role of a worship leader makes a huge difference in how we go about our work, how we select music and how we lead it, how we convene teams of musicians and how we relate to our worshiping communities. Come to hear what a wide variety of pastoral musicians are learning about their own work and to imagine what steps you and other leaders in your congregation might take to grow in this way.
B4: Worship in Times of Tension

Meeter Center Lecture Hall

Denise Posie, Kathy Smith, and Cecil VanNiejenhuis, moderated by Joyce Borger

We’ve all been there or will be—planning worship when things just aren’t the way they are supposed to be. Tension and even conflict will happen in every church at some point. In this seminar we will examine the common dynamics at play in such situations, how to plan and lead worship wisely in the midst of them, and how to design worship that is hospitable to the Spirit’s work of reconciliation.

B5: Connecting Sunday’s Worship to Monday’s Work

Prince Conference Center, Willow Room

Peter Choi, Laura Robinson Harbert, Meg Jenista, Matthew Kaemingk, and Reggie Smith, moderated by Cory Willson

“Faith and Work” has recently become a major theme of Christian renewal in congregations across North America and beyond. Our faith matters a great deal for how and why we work, and we can all grow in making this vision more specific and tangible. The liturgy not only effects how we approach our weekday work, but our weekday work also shapes how we inhabit Sunday worship. This session will explore how public congregational worship relates to faith and work, exploring tangible ideas of preaching, public prayer, and the arts.

B6: Gifts of Hispanic and Latino Protestants in North America

Covenant Fine Arts Center, Room 135

Mariano Avila, Carlos Colón, Jaime Lázaro, and Maria Monteiro, moderated by Maria Cornou

This session will explore the depth, gifts, wisdom, and insights that have emerged through Christian worship among the rapidly growing Hispanic and Latino worshiping communities in the United States. It will also explore the way these gifts can bless and strengthen all kinds of churches—both multicultural churches and culturally homogenous churches; Spanish-speaking, English-speaking, and bi-lingual churches; and churches of other ethnic and cultural groups here in North America and across the world. The session will highlight themes identified in a recent consultation on bilingual worship resources and suggest practical strategies for further learning in your context.
B7: Heartsongs for Good Friday and Easter: Insights and Inspiration from Worshiping Communities Across North America and Around the World

Prince Conference Center, Great Hall

Robert J. Batastini, Judith Laoyan-Mosomos, Swee Hong Lim, Emmett G. Price III, and Raymond Wise, moderated by John D. Witvliet

The death and resurrection of Jesus Christ is at the center of Christian faith, life, and worship. Every Good Friday and Easters, Christians from all over the world gather in remarkably different contexts to tell this story—and sing about what it means for us and the world God loves. During this session, panelists will be asked to choose two songs from their ministry context which unpack the significant of Jesus’ death and resurrection—songs which are deeply loved and that poignantly express the meaning of these events. Come to discover some new songs that you will want to sing, to glimpse the beauty of Christ’s church in variety of ministry contexts, and to see again the power and beauty of the gospel of Jesus Christ.

B8: Imagining Liturgical Art for Your Worship Space

Covenant Fine Arts Center, Room 125

Jeanne Logan

This seminar will explore the possibilities of liturgical art for the participants’ own worship spaces. Participants will send in images of a space for which they are interested in creating a meaningful artistic liturgical environment. After seeing examples of Jeanne’s commissioned work and that of others, the group will discuss various options for utilizing their own spaces and what media might be used. Consideration will be given to both the liturgical season and the character and needs of the congregation. Bring photos of your worship space.

B9: The Body and Voice of Worship Words

Spoelhof Center, Lab Theater

Jeff Barker and Northwestern College Drama Ministries Ensemble

Lots of words are spoken in worship: the Bible, sermons, poems, testimonies, prayers, invitations, transitions, and even announcements. How can we artists help each other (and the whole church) speak worship words with joy, clarity, energy, and authenticity? Join an afternoon of activities, encouragement, and inspiration surrounding both what we say and how we say it.

10:15 a.m.–3:30 p.m. Retreats

1: While We Are Waiting, Yielded and Still

Meet in Hekman Library Lobby (refreshments in lobby before boarding shuttle to location)

Held at 3230 Burton Street (next to Woodlawn Ministry Center)

Dale Cooper
This retreat will be limited to 15 people who will spend time together in a home setting, also enjoying fellowship over the noon meal. In this day of quiet together, we will ponder afresh “how deep the Father’s love for us;” enjoy “sweet communion” with Jesus; and pledge anew, God’s Spirit helping us, “with one holy passion,” to return our Lover’s love. Lunch will be on location.

2: Leading Congregations in Song: Techniques and Resources for Organists

Meet in Hekman Library Lobby (refreshments in lobby)

Before boarding shuttle pick up your boxed lunch.

Held at LaGrave Avenue Christian Reformed Church (107 LaGrave Ave, Grand Rapids 49503)

Michael Burkhardt, with Larry Visser, hosted by Norma de Waal Malefyt

Michael Burkhardt will explore how choices about harmony, tempo, registration, and other techniques can form an assembly into a strong singing congregation—drawing particularly on songs and hymns often used during Lent and Eastertide. The session will also explore how the very same song or hymn can be led in quite contrasting ways depending on the context of the service and the season. The session will also include a presentation by Larry Visser on the use of descants in worship, featuring his new collection of over 200+ descants that will be available to session participants.

3: A New Song. A Skillful Song.

Covenant Fine Arts Center, Room 115

Sandra McCracken and Adam M. L. Tice, moderated by Greg Scheer

Those of us who feel Psalm 33’s call to write new songs must remember that the Psalm also tells us to play skillfully. In this seminar we will focus on the skills of songwriting for congregations, digging into what it means to balance inspiration and perspiration. Join critically-acclaimed singer-songwriter Sandra McCracken and widely-published hymn writer Adam Tice as they speak with Greg Scheer about their approaches to creating new texts, new tunes, and the combining of texts and tunes. The afternoon will be spent discussing participants’ song submissions. Attendees of all levels and musical styles will benefit from this seminar.

4: Faith Formation, Worship, and the Building Blocks of Faith

Calvin Theological Seminary, Student Center

Syd Hielema, Laura Keeley, and Robert J. Keeley

Faith formation is central to all church ministry, including worship, but it is both difficult to define and difficult to talk about. During this retreat, participants will consider faith formation through a concept called the Building Blocks of Faith. They will explore how congregations can use this concept to assess and enrich faith formation practices. Several church groups will share their experiences in using this concept, and all the participants will explore how this concept might be used in their worshipping communities.
3:30–4:15 p.m. Conversation break

Please travel to the following location for coffee and tea.
Covenant Fine Arts Center, West Lobby

+ Visit the exhibit and display tables
Covenant Fine Arts Center

4:15–5:00 p.m. Vespers

These services are repeated at the same time on Friday.

1: The Good News for the Hurting: A Service of Scripture and Song

Covenant Fine Arts Center
Michael Burkhardt, the Choral Scholars, and Zebulon Highben, featuring texts by Adam M. L. Tice

Led by the choir and organ, this service of scripture and song surrounds a few Isaiah texts, bring good news for a hurting world.

2: Were You There When They Crucified My Lord?

Spoelhof Center, Lab Theater
Jeff Barker, C.J. Kingdom-Grier, and Northwestern College Drama Ministries Ensemble

The Northwestern College touring drama ensemble along with C.J Kingdom-Grier will help us remember the story of the arrest, trial, crucifixion and resurrection of Jesus. This service is a verbatim presentation of Isaiah 53 and Luke 22–24.

3: “Through It All:” Our Story, Our Song

Calvin Theological Seminary, Chapel
Emmett G. Price III, and several alumni from the James Abbington Church Music Academy

This service will feature the inspiring prayers, songs, and readings from the African American worship tradition, past and present.

4: My Soul Finds Rest in God: Psalms of Praise, Lament, and Hope

Covenant Fine Arts Center, Auditorium
Sandra McCracken with Hope College musicians

Join with singer-songwriter Sandra McCracken for contemplative songs and liturgical prayers, while making space within this worship service for both lament and joy.
5:  God of Justice, Love, and Mercy

Covenant Fine Arts Center, Recital Hall

Fuller Theological Seminary worship team, with Jennifer Ackerman, Jennifer Graffius, Laura Robinson Harbert, Todd E. Johnson, and Ed Willmington

Led by singers, band, organ, and strings, the Fuller Seminary Chapel worship leaders utilize traditional and original resources to guide worshipers through a prayerful liturgy of confession and forgiveness.

+  Convened group: CRC Worship Ministries Peer Learning Group
   4:15–6:30 p.m., Commons Annex, Staff Dining Room (2nd floor)
   Hosted by Joyce Borger and Diane Dykgraaf of the Worship Ministries Office of the Christian Reformed Church in North America.

5:00–6:45 p.m.  Dinner

Commons Dining Hall

Name badge lists pre-paid meals or pay cash at the door.

10:15–11:15 a.m.  Plenary sessions

Repeated Saturday morning.

1:  Universal Design for Worship: Shaping Worship for People of All Abilities
    Calvin College Chapel
    Barbara J. Newman

“Universal design” is now standard for architecture: we don’t want to retrofit buildings to make them accessible, we want to build them that way from the start. What would it look like for this vision to be extended to the worship services we plan and lead? What if we didn’t need to retrofit our planning to be accommodating to persons at all levels of ability and disability, but planned them that way from the start?

2: Improvising New Life: Why Tradition and Innovation Belong Together in Christian Theology and Worship
Covenant Fine Arts Center, Auditorium
L. Gregory Jones with jazz ensemble

The infamous “worship wars” typically pit “traditional” versus “contemporary” worship and music. But what if “tradition” and “innovation” actually belong together? What if “traditioned innovation” is a biblical way of thinking that is appropriate, indeed crucial, to bearing faithful witness to the Triune God? What might that imply for our worship, our theology, and our Christian life?

11:15–11:45 a.m.  Travel time

11:45 a.m.–12:45 p.m.  Workshop A

Workshops are one hour long, offered on Friday and then repeated on Saturday unless noted.

AL: Lunch break
Commons Dining Hall
Name badge lists pre-paid meals or pay cash at the door.

+ Bring your food and join Paul Bylsma from the Calvin Admissions team to hear about what life is like as a Calvin College student. Also, don’t miss the drawing for a free sweatshirt. See the Calvin College display table in the Covenant Fine Arts Center (first floor).
Commons Dining Hall, Upper Crust

A1: Spanish and English Together: Learning and Worshiping Interculturally
Covenant Fine Arts Center, Room 227
Robert J. Batastini and Maria Cornou

Changes in the United States’ demographics can be seen by churches as a problem or as an opportunity. In this workshop, we will explore some reasons, challenges, and benefits of worshiping interculturally.
A2: Rediscovering Biblical Lament and Christian Hope in a Congregational Context

Calvin Theological Seminary, Chapel

J. Todd Billings

How can congregations reclaim the biblical practice of bringing both grief and anger before the Lord in prayer and worship? How can these practices ultimately be an expression of Christian hope in God’s promises? In this workshop, Rev. Ann Conklin will explore questions such as these in an interview with Todd Billings about his book Rejoicing in Lament: Wrestling with Incurable Cancer and Life in Christ. There will be an opportunity for further questions from attendees on this topic as well.

A3: A Cross-Cultural, Multi-Generational Discussion on Contextualized Worship

Hiemenga Hall, Room 332

Mark Charles

The Christian Church has been contextualizing its worship of Christ for thousands of years. But the gift of contextualization, modeled by Jesus and commanded by Paul, was not passed down to Native and Indigenous followers of Christ. This workshop will seek to understand the Biblical model for contextualizing the gospel and listen to many voices regarding contextualized worship across the spans of tribes, cultures, languages, and generations. There will be time for questions from session attendees.

A4: The Church as Intergenerational Community

Hiemenga Hall, Room 316

Todd Cioffi with a panel of Calvin students

There is much talk about the importance of “Christian community.” What is meant by that? Is it the same as the “church”? Is it possible to have one without the other? How do different generations relate to each other within this community? A panel of Calvin College students will address what Christian community means to them, how it relates to the church, why it matters in the world, and how they may think differently about this topic than previous generations. They will also reflect on the significance of worship in terms of establishing and maintaining intergenerational Christian community both within and beyond the church’s walls.

A5: A Refugee Looks at the Psalms of Ascent

Carlos Colón

On Saturday, this workshop is offered in Spanish.

Recent unrest, conflict, and war have caused an unprecedented refugee crisis. The plight of Syrian, Iraqi, and other Middle Eastern refugees has shocked the whole world. Also, many youth and children are trying to enter the United States from Central America to escape violence and poverty. Carlos Colón will share some of his story as a refugee of the civil war in his native El Salvador. In this session, we will strive for a Christocentric reading of the Psalms of Ascent, journeying with our eyes set on Jesus, and also keeping in sight our call to love, show compassion and hospitality to those different from us, and offer them good news, as we follow a Savior who is full of grace and truth.

A6: Learning to Worship for the Life of the World
Covenant Fine Arts Center, Room 135
Steven Guthrie

For the Life of the World is one of the most influential books ever written on the sacraments. But this classic text by the Orthodox theologian Alexander Schmemann encompasses all of the Christian experience, inviting the reader into a pattern of “sacramental living.” This seminar will provide an accessible introduction to For the Life of the World and will think about how its vision might shape our worship and our lives.

A7: Projection Practices
Hiemenga Hall, Room 315
Betsy Steele Halstead

Worship leaders and planners are well aware of the pervasive use of projection media for songs, prayers, litanies, art, and advertisements in our worship services. There seems, however, to be so little discussion to guide us in its thoughtful and effective use. In this workshop we’ll explore best projection practices that serve to enable the full, conscious, and active participation of the people.

A8: Psalms From the Soul
Covenant Fine Arts Center, Room 255
Rawn Harbor

Explore musical settings of the biblical Psalms shaped by a black gospel idiom, the power of call-and-response approaches to singing, and a deep commitment to engage the full congregation in singing as prompted by soloists or choirs. The Psalm settings were designed to link Psalms with appropriate Christian celebrations of the life, death, resurrection and ascension of Jesus, and for other commonly celebrated occasions. Come both to find music to sing in your context and to be inspired by these soulful settings of the biblical text.
A9: The Worship Pastor: Thinking Through the Pastoral Dimensions of Worship Leading

Meeter Center Lecture Hall
Zac Hicks

Whether we know it or not, as worship leaders, we are pastors. The services we plan and lead have a formative effect on the worshipers with whom we gather weekly. The question is not if people are being formed by our leadership, but how. In this workshop, we will explore various vignettes, different lenses through which we might see the pastoral ministry of worship leading. In a mixture of biblical framing and practical application, we will look at the Worship Pastor through metaphors like Prayer Leader, Theological Dietician, Caregiver, Mortician, War General, and Emotional Shepherd.

A10: Singing the Great Fifty Days

Calvin College Chapel, Room 214
Zebulon M. Highben

Easter Sunday is the beginning of the church's longest festival: the Great Fifty Days of Easter. Yet it can be a musical challenge to connect the exuberance of Easter Sunday with the season's culmination at Pentecost. This workshop presents ideas for musically and liturgically unifying the Easter season while highlighting each Sunday's individual lessons and themes. Hymns, canticles, and choral repertoire from several publishers will be featured.

A11: Understanding Your Congregation's Unique Worship Culture

Hiemenga Hall, Room 323
Monique Ingalls

Each local congregation has its own unique history, geographical and social location, demographic makeup, and mission. As worship leaders, we need to understand each of these aspects of our local church's "worship culture" in order to choose and adapt worship resources that engage the mind, heart, and spirit of our congregation members. This workshop introduces models and methods from the social sciences, including ethnography, interviewing, and structured observation, that we can use to explore these dynamics within our congregations. It then highlights practical ways how we can use the insights we glean from these methods to more deeply understand and engage our congregations.

A12: Conversation on Traditioned Innovation

Covenant Fine Arts Center, Room 222
L. Gregory Jones, hosted by Kathy Smith

An opportunity for conference attendees to ask questions related to the themes presented in the plenary session.
A13: Using Images to Preach to the Imagination
Hiemenga Hall, Room 331
Peter Jonker

Preachers are always looking for ways to make their sermons more memorable. In this workshop we will study controlling images as a tool for crafting impactful sermons. We will enlist the help of poets and other artists as we seek to sharpen our skills.

A14: Incorporating Faith and Work into the Worship Service
Hiemenga Hall, Room 333
David H. Kim

How do we help people connect their faith to their work in our worship services? For many Christians, bringing faith into the workplace falls into two main categories—evangelism and ethics. While certainly Christians should be eager to share their faith with anyone who asks, and while we hope that Christians would be known as trustworthy ethical people, is this what it means for the gospel to transform work? This seminar will present how the framework of motivations, relationships, and world can expand our understanding of what it means to bring faith into our work.

A15: Do You Know Where You’re Going To? A Glimpse of the Next Generation of Congregational Song
Covenant Fine Arts Center, Room 115
Swee Hong Lim

This workshop will explore the next generation of congregational song. This emerging genre occupies a soundscape of music-making where its character is postmodern in the West and postcolonial in the Global South. It seeks to revitalize local, cultural traditions in a myriad of communities’ efforts of meaning-making in the 21st century. This is a guided conversation time where participants are encouraged to share their perspectives and observations. Musical examples will be shared.

A16: How Can Art Bring About Such a Great Thing?
Hiemenga Hall, Room 334
David McNutt

How can a consideration of one of the most divisive issues during the Reformation helpfully inform the church’s corporate worship today? Questions surrounding the theology and practice of the church’s sacraments—including their number, their nature, and their function—were among the most hotly contested issues during the Reformation. Likewise, the category of sacrament has been appealed to in recent considerations of the arts and their place in the life of the church. In this session, participants will consider what we can learn from the sacramental life of the Reformation.
church and how that can inform our understanding of the potential role of the arts in its worship today.

A17: Worship and Public Engagement
Covenant Fine Arts Center, Recital Hall
Richard J. Mouw

That corporate worship must equip us for serving God’s purposes in the world, certainly means that we must attend to the social-political-economic dimensions of our lives as citizens. How do we structure our congregational patterns with this in mind without making our worship “too political”? What are the proper ways of preaching, praying, singing, and catechizing about the obligations of citizenship? We will focus in this workshop on preaching during times of political controversy, on the use of “patriotic hymns,” and other practical—but challenging—concerns that emerge in our efforts to be biblical faithful in planning worship.

A18: Conversation on Universal Design for Worship
Hiemenga Hall, Room 335
Barbara J. Newman, hosted by Lyn Ten Brink

An opportunity for conference attendees to ask questions related to the themes presented in the plenary session.

A19: Singing with Martin Luther and the Lutherans
Covenant Fine Arts Center, Room 252
Mark Noll

This workshop is designed to explore the riches of Lutheran hymnody for those, like Professor Noll, who are not themselves Lutherans. We will take a quick historical journey to note important landmarks. The rest of the session will take advantage of one of the recently published American Lutheran hymnals to explore the contours of contemporary Lutheran song. The hope is to help those outside the Lutheran tradition appreciate its historical richness and think about exploiting those riches to enliven worship in all traditions.

A20: Wording the Sunday Sermon
Cornelius Plantinga Jr.

One of the preacher’s big challenges is finding language for the Sunday sermon that will engage the most of her or his listeners. But what kind of language is that? What are some of its features? Using multiple examples from published sermons, this workshop will identify, discuss, and recommend certain excellent features of well-worded Sunday sermons.
A21: The Holy Spirit and Sacraments: Calvin’s Take
Calvin Theological Seminary, Room 241
Sue Rozeboom

John Calvin has been acclaimed “the theologian of the Holy Spirit.” His discussions of the sacraments attest to the fittingness of this identity. Together, we’ll harvest Calvin's thought, expecting our understanding of the sacraments to be nourished and our celebration of the sacraments to be refreshed.

A22: Preaching to the Streets: Homiletics for Urban Ministry
Calvin Theological Seminary, Upper Room
Reggie Smith

How can the Bible speak to the hopes and fears of urban people who don’t know anything about the Christian life? This workshop will provide biblical case studies and principles for preaching to people who struggle with bringing the ancient text to the struggles of life today.

A23: Sanctifying Art: Inviting Conversation Between Artists, Theologians, and the Church
Hiemenga Hall, Room 321
Deborah Sokolove

In her book, Sanctifying Art, Deborah Sokolove offers ways to understand the arts as a way of thinking and understanding, as a tool for healing the broken places in the world, and even as a divinely ordained means of grace. To sanctify an object or an activity is to set it aside for divine purposes, to purify it, to make it holy. Similarly, individuals and even communities are said to be sanctified when they live in close alignment with God’s will. Art is one of the activities that human beings have been given to aid in the process of sanctification. In order to do that, we need to think clearly about what art is, the role of artists in the community, and how the arts affect those who participate in them, both as makers and as audience.

A24: Liturgy That Cares
Hiemenga Hall, Room 336
Howard Vanderwell

Some call it the “preliminaries,” some hastily put it together, and others have very elaborate liturgies. This sectional is built on the conviction that it’s time to take a thorough new look at the pastoral power of the order of worship. We will try to identify the needs worshipers bring to church, and we’ll examine the liturgy with an eye to finding the best ways to meet those needs. Our goal is the development of liturgies that join with the sermon in providing pastoral care.
A25: “Praise God in the Heights: Descants for Worship”
Calvin College Chapel
Larry Visser
Offered Friday only.

This session will explore the new publication of 164 descants composed by Larry Visser designed to accompany the hymnal Lift Up Your Hearts by sharing ways in which descants can be used in worship and by singing several examples from the collection. Participants will receive a copy of “Praise God in the Heights.”

A26: “Worship with Gladness”: Beginning a Conversation about Worship’s Deep Meaning
Hiemenga Hall, Room 337
Joyce Ann Zimmerman

We might lament that the religious culture in society is in decline. Or we can raise glad hearts that many people are intensely committed to the deep meaning and purpose of worship. This workshop will explore key issues for worship today, elements of worship, God’s Word in worship, baptismal identity and worship, and the relation of worship to everyday living.

12:45–1:15 p.m.  Travel time

1:15–2:15 p.m.  Workshop B

Workshops are one hour long, offered on Friday and then repeated on Saturday unless noted.

BL:  Lunch break
Commons Dining Hall
Name badge lists pre-paid meals or pay cash at the door.

+ Convened group: Jubilee Fellows conversation with presenter Meg Jenista
Commons Annex, Student Senate Meeting Room (2nd floor)

B1: Fostering a Safe Place for Courageous Conversations: Lessons Learned from 100 Peer Clergy Groups around the World
Hiemenga Hall, Room 315
Jennifer Ackerman

Many peer clergy groups tend to be comprised within a particular affinity group—pastors from a single denomination or culture group, men or women, etc. What happens when you form an intentionally diverse group made up of men and women from a variety of cultural, denominational, theological, and socio-economic contexts? Diversity changes the conversation. This workshop will explore the challenges and the gifts of participation in this kind of “safe place for courageous conversations” as experienced by more than 1,000 clergy participating in Micah Groups over the past five years.

B2: When Music Helps Us Hear the Bible
Spoelhof Center, Lab Theater
Jeff Barker

Sometimes the Bible rejoices when joined by song and sound! Experience a variety of simple ways music can help us receive the scripture in worship with our heads and our hearts.

B3: Writing and Recording Worship Music with Your Music Team
Covenant Fine Arts Center, Room 255
Bruce Benedict and Wen Reagan

Would you like to integrate song writing and recording into your church music team, but not sure how? Or maybe you’ve written some songs, but are not sure where to start with recording and audio production? Come learn from Wen and Bruce, fellow songwriters and producers of Cardiphonia, a national collective of songwriters and producers, who write and record new worship music for the benefit of the church. In this workshop you’ll learn some tips on how to direct the creativity of your music team into recorded music that you can share with your local church and the wider body of Christ.

B4: May I Have this Dance?
Calvin College Chapel
Michael Burkhardt

This workshop—for choir directors, dancers, organists, and more—will focus on realizing the dances of hymns with the voice, with the body, and at the keyboard. Alexander Technique principles and the music education research of Edwin Gordon will provide foundations for the hymn experiences.

B5: The Promise and Peril of Preaching for Revival: Lessons from George Whitefield's Life and Ministry
Calvin Theological Seminary, Room 242
Peter Choi

Seasons of renewal are God’s gift to the church. They are also occasions for controversy and division. Together we will reflect on one of history’s greatest revival preachers to understand not only how revivals come but what follows in their aftermath. “God’s anointed barnstormer,” according to J. I. Packer, and “the greatest English preacher who has ever lived,” in the estimation of Martin Lloyd-Jones, George Whitefield also made crucial mistakes and had his fair share of regrets. To pay attention to the long duration of this famous preacher’s life is to learn both the promise and peril of revivals in the church.

B6: El culto como práctica formativa (offered Saturday only, see page 48)

B7: How the News Shapes Our Prayers and Preaching: Deepening our Loving Engagement with the World God Loves

Covenant Fine Arts Center, Recital Hall
Elizabeth Dias, Richard J. Mouw, Anne Zaki, moderated by John D. Witvliet

If our public prayers and preaching are at all responsive to the needs of the world, then how we glean information about the world is crucial. Whether through new or old media, journalists have a key role to play in whether and how we pray and preach about everything from the persecution of Christians, conflict in the Middle East, creation care, and abortion to local concerns related to public education and social services. Join a conversation with a leading national journalist (Elizabeth Dias), a public theologian (Richard Mouw), and a seminary professor and preacher (Anne Zaki) that can inform your own engagement with the world God loves.

B8: Compare and Contrast: Learning from the Visual Arts across Christian Traditions

Covenant Fine Arts Center, Room 227
Lisa De Boer

Many Protestant congregations are eagerly and actively working to recover the riches of the visual realm to deepen their worship and communal life. And while much good work and learning is occurring within these congregations, what might we learn from a close examination of the how the visual arts function in Orthodox and Catholic settings? This session highlights three theological questions regarding worship and congregational life, raised by a cross-confessional comparison of the role of the visual arts.

B9: Stroke Survivors in our Worship Communities

Hiemenga Hall, Room 323
Peggy Goetz
Offered Friday only.

Stroke survivors usually receive excellent support from their churches during the “crisis” time immediately after their stroke. People visit, bring food, and pray for them. But upon returning home, most stroke survivors must learn to deal with new challenges that affect their entire lives, they may even have physical and linguistic challenges that affect their experiences in worship services. This workshop will present an ethnographic study describing the experiences of stroke survivors in their church communities and two worship services planned for these participants. As a group, we will then discuss future possibilities for planning worship with stroke survivors.

B10: Augsburg Fortress Choral Reading Session
Calvin College Chapel, Room 214
Zebulon M. Highben

This reading session features newly published choral repertoire as well as best-sellers from the Augsburg Fortress catalog. Pieces for all seasons of the liturgical year, in a variety of voicings and musical styles, will be included.

B11: The Gifts of Worship-on-Purpose
Hiemenga Hall, Room 331
Carol Hochhalter

The Four-Fold Pattern of Worship (echoing the four-fold pattern of the Old Testament covenant) answers the “major” questions that many people are asking today: Who am I? What am I here for? Where do I belong? How should I spend my life? This formational aspect of worship is powerful and requires deep reflection and careful planning to shape the worshiping community well. Come to this workshop to learn more about this pattern and ideas to implement it.

B12: Preaching and the Troubles of the Day
Calvin Theological Seminary, Auditorium
Scott Hoezee

Preaching and pastoral care go well together and never more so than when the sensitive preacher is able to think through the kinds of troubles and hurts people bring with them to church each week. The sermon that names concrete situations of pain not only help people see themselves inside the sermon better, but it opens them up to be hungry for God’s corresponding message of comfort and grace. This workshop will suggest categories of pastoral trouble that can be brought into sermons and how preachers can bring this fruitfully into the preaching moment.

B13: Worship for Workers: (Re)Connecting Sunday and Monday Morning
Calvin Theological Seminary, Room 241
Matthew Kaemingk

A deep chasm exists for the people of God between their worship on Sunday morning and their work on Monday morning. One is seen as purely sacred and the other as purely secular. One is understood has holy and beautiful while the other is understood to be profane and mundane. This workshop will explore why this chasm exists, why it is problematic for both our worship and our work, and how worship leaders can help their congregations overcome it.

B14: Faith Formation, Cradle to Grave
Meeter Center Lecture Hall
Laura Keeley and Robert J. Keeley

Churches have a variety of faith forming activities. It can be difficult to see how they fit together to form the faith of young and older members of the congregation. Worship is one of the few activities that many churches do with all ages. In this workshop we will introduce the Building Block of Faith model as a way to think about all the church’s activities as faith forming events.

B15: Just Show Up: Bible Listening Gatherings
Hiemenga Hall, Room 334
Charles Kim

Learn more about a unique book club where listening to extended Bible passages is the key activity for the group. The purpose of this gathering is to rediscover the value of the public reading and listening to scripture as it has been done during the early church and throughout Christian history. In partnership with Grace and Mercy Foundation based in New York City, Charles Kim has been starting and actively promoting “Bible Listening Gatherings” and “Just Show Up” book clubs at various locations, including corporate offices on Wall Street, university lecture halls, local coffee shops, and international locations. Participants will learn why, what, and how to practice Bible Listening Gatherings as a unique form of worship.

B16: How the Scattered Church informs the way we think about the Gathered Church
Hiemenga Hall, Room 333
David H. Kim

What would our worship services look like if we lived out the understanding that church is the people of God at all times and places? When Christians go to work on Monday they don’t cease being the church. How does this understanding of the scattered church inform the way we think about the gathered church? Imagine how your worship service would change if it felt less like a destination and more like a launching pad into the rest of the week. We will explore the Biblical theme of exile to help us think through these pertinent questions.
B17: Workship Within U.S. Latino/a Evangelical Communities: A Journalistic Analysis
Hiemenga Hall, Room 332
Jaime Lázaro

In cooperation with the Centro Latino and Fuller Seminary’s Brehm Center, the Calvin Institute of Christian Worship commissioned Jaime Lázaro to conduct a series of interviews with influential worship ministers who have been active in the Latino/Latina evangelical community in the United States, as well as interviews with pastors of the same demographic in the Southern California region. The topics that Jaime will share represent diverse denominational backgrounds along the evangelical spectrum. The objective of this project, through the method of journalistic interviews, is to better understand the multiple experiences present in Latino/Latina public worship in the United States.

B18: How to Commission Liturgical Art
Hiemenga Hall, Room 335
Jeanne Logan

Jeanne will show examples of her own commissioned work as well as outstanding examples of the work of others. She will then focus on the nuts and bolts of commissioning a work of liturgical art: what does the artist expect from you and what you should expect from the artist.

B19: From the Inside Out: Guiding Adolescents in Worship Leadership
Hiemenga Hall, Room 316
Eric Mathis

Following worship, a student worship leader remarked, “I’m always told what to do, but rarely how to do it or even why I’m doing it.” This student is asking the church to ponder a critical question: How can we guide young worship leaders? More poignantly, how do we encourage them to create, play, and imagine? How do we the instill confidence they need to stand before the body of Christ? How do we cultivate a theological lens they can use for practice and reflection? Guided by these questions, this discussion-based workshop will work toward establishing a framework for shaping the habits, practices, and formation of young worship leaders.

B20: Something Old, Something New, Something Borrowed, Something Blue: Principles for Renewing Language in Worship
Covenant Fine Arts Center, Room 264
Debra Rienstra and Ron Rienstra

This workshop will offer tools and ideas for creating rich, balanced language in worship. Participants will explore principles for and discuss examples of welcoming traditional language gracefully; composing or improvising elements in fresh language; using songs and prayers to worship with the global church; and finding a place for lament. The session is based on the book
Worship Words (Baker Academic, 2009), co-authored by Ron and Debra Rienstra.

B21: Gospel Vocalises & Warm Ups: Engaging Mind, Body, and Spirit

Covenant Fine Arts Center, Room 115

Charsie Sawyer

Many classically trained singers who desire to sing gospel straddle the vocal fence, trying, often unsuccessfully, to produce a sound that is aesthetically “legitimate” by both standards. This struggle can be debilitating and often ends only when the singer feels forced to subscribe to a single style. On the other hand, many gospel singers are afraid to approach gospel singing with a healthier vocal technique because they fear losing that guttural authenticity characteristic of the gospel tradition. How can we blend both without damaging the vocal cords and engaging the mind, body, and spirit? Come to this workshop ready to learn both physical and spiritual practices to guide this blended approach. Participants will receive a copy of Dr. Sawyer’s new book.

B22: No More Footprints: Preaching and Theological Clichés

Hiemenga Hall, Room 337

Noel A. Snyder

Have you ever considered using a certain phrase or illustration in your preaching—say, the “Footprints in the Sand” poem—but then decided it was too cliché? What makes something a cliché, and what is at stake in the use of clichés—especially the theological kind—in preaching? How can we avoid the gospel itself becoming something of a cliché in our preaching? Seasoned and novice preachers alike are invited to explore this issue in a fun and interactive setting.

B23: Sing the Peaceful Kingdom

Calvin Theological Seminary, Chapel

Adam M. L. Tice

Sing and explore new congregational song resources based on passages from Isaiah. Song leaders and worship planners sample from a wide variety of styles and resources representing the best in recent contemporary song, hymnody, and world music. The presenter will also present and discuss a few of his own pieces, offering insight into one writer’s engagement with Isaiah’s poetry and prose.

B24: The Next Worship: Glorifying God in a Diverse World

Calvin Theological Seminary, Upper Room

Sandra Maria Van Opstal

What happens when a diverse church glorifies the global God? We live in a time of unprecedented intercultural exchange. Our communities welcome people from around the world. Music and media from every culture are easily accessible. And our worship is infused with a rich variety of musical and liturgical influences. But leading worship in multicultural contexts can be a crosscultural experience for everybody. How do we help our congregations navigate the journey? This workshop will provide biblical foundations for multiethnic worship, with practical tools and resources for planning services that reflect God’s invitation for all peoples to praise God.

B25: “21 Spirituals for the 21st Century”
Covenant Fine Arts Center, Room 252
Raymond Wise

The Negro Spiritual has been hailed as American’s first authentic folk music. Spirituals have served as a primary musical source from which many sacred and secular musical genres have stemmed. The “Spiritual” itself has evolved into many forms. There are oral, concert, art song, congregational, and gospel spirituals, and each has its own unique musical characteristics that have helped to preserve the Spiritual as a musical form. Come learn more about Spirituals, hear and sing some traditional spirituals and experience contemporary spiritual arrangements from Raymond Wise’s collection of 21 Spirituals for the 21st Century.

B26: “Come to God’s Table”: A Philosopher’s Reflections on Visual Depictions of Hospitality, Justice, Hope, and the Lord’s Supper
Covenant Fine Arts Center, Center Art Gallery
Nicholas Wolterstorff

The curated collection of artworks in the Center Art Gallery features works that celebrate both the rich community gathered at the Table of Fellowship and the privilege of meeting with God at his Table of Communion. From Abraham entertaining angels, to the Christ’s Last Supper with his disciples, to the great Marriage Feast of the Lamb at the end of time, the table is a rich biblical metaphor. Indeed, the promise of Revelation 19 is that human history will culminate around a table where the people of God are all present. God’s Table is a place of welcome, justice, abundance, and worship. This session features reflections on this remarkable collection by philosopher Nicholas Wolterstorff, whose writings are noted for their insightful discussions of the arts, justice, and the Lord’s Supper. Come to learn and see more deeply both into these artworks, but also into the nature of the gospel itself.

2:15–2:45 p.m. Travel time
2:45–3:45 p.m.  Workshop C

C1: Principles of an Urban Doxology

Covenant Fine Arts Center, Room 255

David M. Bailey and Urban Doxology

What does worship look like for a church that is economically, educationally, and culturally diverse? This is a question that David Bailey and the members of Urban Doxology have been exploring in the context of their diverse urban church, East End Fellowship, a community that endeavors to be a faithful presence seeking God's joy and justice for their neighborhood out of love for Christ. In this workshop, they will share the guiding principles of worship for their community to facilitate reconciliation across dividing lines. ‘Urban Doxology’ is a liturgy that includes preaching, music, and arts, and crosses boundaries in ethnicity, race, and class that prepares God's people for the city of God. Come and learn!

C2: What Does World Christianity Mean for Your Church?

Calvin Theological Seminary, Room 242

Peter Choi

The remarkable story of Christianity’s growth as a world religion has implications not only for mission work in the far corners of the globe but also for ministry in each local congregation. In what ways is the gospel—to use Andrew Walls’ terms—a “prisoner” as well as “liberator” of culture? What does faithful Christian ministry look like in our increasingly pluralistic contexts? How can sacramental worship speak to secular skeptics? In this workshop, we will explore key lessons for the life of your church that emerge from the spread of Christianity across the world.

C3: The Church Behind Bars

Hiemenga Hall, Room 331

Todd Cioffi

Offered Friday only

This session will explore the growth of the church behind bars in several Michigan prisons and in Angola Prison in Louisiana. Much of this growth is due to the vibrant worship services and programs offered in these prisons. How does prison shape worship? And more importantly, how does worship shape a prison? What can the “outside” church learn from those churches behind bars?
C4: Revitalized Worship Spaces
Meeter Center Lecture Hall
Michael J. Crosbie

Renovated, restored, and reborn sacred spaces are the wave of the future, as congregations revitalize their aging facilities, move into spaces once occupied by other denominations and faith traditions, and retrofit religious buildings to serve new uses. This presentation will focus on religious buildings and facilities that have been given a new lease on life thanks to creative and inventive designs that make them vital to changing demands as congregations change and evolve.

C5: Discerning the Body—Shaping Perceptions about Catholic and Protestant Identity
Covenant Fine Arts Center, Recital Hall
Elizabeth Dias, Mark Noll, Joyce Ann Zimmerman, María Cornou, moderated by John D. Witvliet

Our worshiping communities are constantly sending implicit messages about the breadth and unity of Christ's body, especially about the 500 year rupture between Protestant and Catholic communities. These implicit messages have a powerful effect on worship practices (“that practice is too Catholic… or too Protestant”), on conversations among neighbors and family members from different Christian traditions (“do you really do that in your parish/church”), and on institutional collaborations among churches and parishes (“should we work together on this?”). Hear reflections on this key theme from a national journalist who has covered Pope Francis, a leading evangelical historian who teaches at the University of Notre Dame, a Catholic liturgical scholar who regularly interacts with Protestant worship communities, and the newest CICW staff member who brings expertise on Christianity in Latin America.

C6: Learning about Twitter
Hiemenga Hall, Room 323
Grant Austin and Phil de Haan
Offered Friday only.

Learn more about how to use Twitter wisely and strategically in your ministry work. Phil de Haan and Grant Austin from the Communication and Marketing department of Calvin College will share their wisdom on using Twitter as a communication tool, including practical details such as setting up an account and creating tweets.

C7: Worship as Spiritual Formation
Calvin College Chapel
Laura Robinson Harbert and Todd E. Johnson

The privilege of Christian worship is the invitation to the community by our holy God to encounter the love of that living God and to be transformed by it and to nurture the transformation of one another. This workshop will explore the potentials and practices of Christian worship specifically aimed at spiritual formation of both the individual and the community of faith.

C8: Preaching to and with Millennials

Calvin Theological Seminary, Chapel
Mary Hulst
Offered Friday only.

As a college chaplain, Mary preaches to millennials every week. Learn what she has discovered and why she thinks the future of the North American church relies on preaching that engages this generation.

C9: ‘Glocal’ Worship: Experiencing the fullness of Christ

Covenant Fine Arts Center, Room 227
Charles Kim
Offered Friday only.

Much has happened in recent years with globalization and urbanization where people from all nations are living as our neighbors. These immigrant communities have started vibrant churches with unique worship expressions. Churches in North America have the opportunity to celebrate the diversity of global cultures and experience the fullness of Christ through ‘glocal’ worship. Missions historian Andrew Walls puts it this way: “the understanding of Christ—knowing the ‘full stature’—arises from the coming together of the fragmented understandings that occur within the diverse culture.” In other words, we only fully understand the fullness of Christ by interacting with Christians of other cultures. Come and find out ways to experience the ‘All Nations’ in the context of local ministry.

Hiemenga Hall, Room 316
Eric Mathis, Paul Ryan, and students from Calvin College and Samford University

Learning to lead worship encompasses what you do and who you are. It entails spirituality as much as it requires skill. In this workshop, we will explore a vital practice of worship leadership: choosing songs. Along the way we will discuss how we engage this practice as a matter of discipleship, identifying cultural trends that resist our efforts and recommending habits for faithful and healthy leadership.
C11: Songs of Praise, Lament, and Hope: A Songwriter's Journey with the Psalms

Covenant Fine Arts Center, Room 135
Sandra McCracken

The Psalms—the Holy Spirit’s inspired songbook right in the middle of the Bible—are a rich source of insight and inspiration for songwriters, singers, and worshipers of all kinds. But these are not easy texts that can be quickly skimmed and set to superficial music. Come to explore with Sandra McCracken how we can engage with these texts with candor, humility, and a deep sense of expectation that they will transform us into more faithful followers of Jesus.

C12: Bad Worship in the Bible

Calvin Theological Seminary, Auditorium
Dirkie Smits

Dirkie Smits, eminent South African theologian, has observed that virtually every book of the Bible condemns bad worship—which is likely to be some odious combination of idolatrous, hypocritical, or careless. Concretely, what does the Bible have to say about bad worship? And how might we strive to learn from what it says and adjust our own worship practices accordingly?

C13: Communion Service Conference Choir Rehearsal

Covenant Fine Arts Center, Room 115
Pearl Shangkuan

Join the Communion Service conference choir directed by Pearl Shangkuan. The choir will participate in the Saturday closing communion service.

Please attend both Friday and Saturday to prepare for the final worship service.

C14: Marking Time: Dressing the Church for the Liturgical Year

Hiemenga Hall, Room 335
Deborah Sokolove

The seasons and special days of the church year are often marked visually by artworks that come and go. In this session we will examine art as a congregational practice in which both adults and children produce banners, paraments, installations, and other occasional artworks that take their place in the worship space alongside those elements that are permanent. Participants are encouraged to send images of what their own congregations do to dress their churches as a way of marking liturgical time.
C15:  Children and Worship
Covenant Fine Arts Center, Room 222
Olivia Stewart

With a new frontier of research on children’s spirituality, research as well as experience is showing churches that creating a sacred space for children, where they can encounter the living God, is vital for their faith formation. This workshop will explore different approaches churches can take to create this sacred space, how to engage your congregation in inviting children into the adult worship experience, and how to talk specifically about the program Young Children & Worship and how it can impact the children and adults at your church or religious institution.

C16:  Preaching As a Celebrative Act
Calvin Theological Seminary, Upper Room
Frank A. Thomas

In this age of pessimism, skepticism, discouragement, fear, and hopelessness, people come to church and listen to the preacher searching for hope. The heart of the message of the gospel is hope. Celebration is the joyful, ecstatic reinforcement of the hope that the preacher gives the people in the sermon. The African American preaching tradition has rich and generous resources in celebration of the gospel in the preaching moment. Frank A. Thomas will share insights, wisdom, and practical skills for celebration in preaching from his book, They Like to Never Quit Praisin’ God: The Role of Celebration in Preaching.

C17:  Learning to See Your Church through New Cultural Eyes
Hiemenga Hall, Room 336
Howard Vanderwell

How does your church look through the eyes of those from other parts of the world? What can we learn about ourselves from the insights of those shaped in difficult cultural contexts? Calvin Theological Seminary has many international students among its student body. A panel of them will help us see what they have discovered in their experience of worship in North America, what has surprised them, and what puzzles them. Come for a rich dialog shaped by insights from the North and the South, the East and the West.

C18:  The Doorway to a New World: The Gracious Power of Baptism in the Christian Life
Covenant Fine Arts Center, Room 252
Lisa Weaver

What a remarkable event baptism is: at once a sign of our being washed clean, a sign of rebirth, and a sign of our dying and rising with Jesus. How can we celebrate baptisms in ways that convey this grace, this depth, and this mystery? How can we best mentor, teach, and encourage those who are baptized, whether as adults or children? Come to learn from a student of worship who has learned from Baptists, Presbyterians, and Roman Catholic communities, and whose research is unpacking the power of early church baptismal practices.

C19: Work, Worship, and Mission: Overlooked First Steps of Missional Ministry

Calvin Theological Seminary, Room 241
Cory Willson

There is a lot of talk about missional communities in North American churches today. These important conversations are helpful as we think about the church’s witness to society. There is a danger of rushing to restructure Christian communities while overlooking the current ways in which church members are already located in strategic contexts for mission in God’s world. This workshop will discuss critical first steps in equipping congregations for a missional engagement with society.

1: The Good News for the Hurting: A Service of Scripture and Song

Calvin College Chapel

Michael Burkhardt, the Choral Scholars, and Zebulon Highben, featuring texts by Adam M. L. Tice

Led by the choir and organ, this service of scripture and song surrounds a few Isaiah texts, bring good news for a hurting world.

2: Were You There When They Crucified My Lord?

Spoelhof Center, Lab Theater

Jeff Barker, C.J. Kingdom-Grier, and Northwestern College Drama Ministries Ensemble

The Northwestern College touring drama ensemble along with C.J Kingdom-Grier will help us remember the story of the arrest, trial, crucifixion and resurrection of Jesus. This service is a verbatim presentation of Isaiah 53 and Luke 22–24.
3: “Through It All:” Our Story, Our Song

Covenant Fine Arts Center, Auditorium

Emmett G. Price III, and several alumni from the James Abbington Church Music Academy

This service will feature the inspiring prayers, songs, and readings from the African American worship tradition, past and present.

4: My Soul Finds Rest in God: Psalms of Praise, Lament, and Hope

Covenant Fine Arts Center, Auditorium

Sandra McCracken with Hope College musicians

Join with singer-songwriter Sandra McCracken for contemplative songs and liturgical prayers, while making space within this worship service for both lament and joy.

5: God of Justice, Love, and Mercy

Covenant Fine Arts Center, Recital Hall

Fuller Theological Seminary worship team, with Jennifer Ackerman, Jennifer Graffius, Laura Robinson Harbert, Todd E. Johnson, and Ed Willmington

Led by singers, band, organ, and strings, the Fuller Seminary Chapel worship leaders utilize traditional and original resources to guide worshipers through a prayerful liturgy of confession and forgiveness.

1:  Universal Design for Worship: Shaping Worship for People of All Abilities

Calvin College Chapel
Barbara J. Newman

‘Universal design’ is now standard for architecture: we don’t want to retrofit buildings to make them accessible, we want to build them that way from the start. What would it look like for this vision to be extended to the worship services we plan and lead? What if we didn’t need to retrofit our planning to be accommodating to persons at all levels of ability and disability, but planned them that way from the start?
2: Improvising New Life: Why Tradition and Innovation Belong Together in Christian Theology and Worship
Covenant Fine Arts Center, Auditorium
L. Gregory Jones with jazz ensemble

The infamous “worship wars” typically pit “traditional” versus “contemporary” worship and music. But what if “tradition” and “innovation” actually belong together? What if “tradiotned innovation” is a biblical way of thinking that is appropriate, indeed crucial, to bearing faithful witness to the Triune God? What might that imply for our worship, our theology, and our Christian life?

Carlos Colón

Los disturbios, conflictos, y guerras de los últimos cien años han causado una enorme crisis. El sufrimiento de refugiados de Siria, Iraq, y otros países del Oriente Medio ha dejado estupefacto al mundo entero. También, muchos niños y jóvenes centroamericanos tratan de entrar a los Estados Unidos para escapar violencia y pobreza. Carlos Colón compartirá parte de su testimonio como refugiado de la guerra civil de su país de origen, El Salvador. En ésta sesión buscaremos una lectura Cristocéntrica de los Cánticos Graduales (Salmos 120–134). Caminaremos con la vista puesta en Jesús, recordando nuestro llamado a amar, compadecernos y a mostrar hospitalidad a aquellos diferentes a nosotros y nosotras; y compartiendo las buenas nuevas, mientras seguimos a un Salvador quien es lleno de gracia y verdad. Uno de los movimientos más importantes en los campos de Estudios Litúrgicos y Educación Cristiana en los últimos 30 años ha sido un renovado énfasis en cómo las prácticas cristianas modelan la espiritualidad de la congregación y de sus miembros. En este taller vamos a explorar cómo las diferentes prácticas cristianas, en especial las prácticas cúlticas, pueden formar a los y las creyentes en la vida y doctrinas cristianas como fieles y fructíferos discípulos y discípulas de Jesús en un mundo que tanto necesita la gracia restauradora del evangelio.

Translation: Worship as a Formative Practice

One of the most significant movements in the fields of Liturgical Studies and Christian Education in the last 30 years has been a renewed emphasis on how Christian practices shape individual and congregational spirituality. In this workshop we will explore how different Christian practices, especially worship practices, can form believers in Christian doctrine and life to be faithful and generative disciples of Jesus in a world that so deeply needs the healing grace of the gospel.

In an effort to encourage Psalm-singing, Church of the Servant sponsors the New Psalm Contest open to any congregational songwriters (now in its sixth year, free entry, cash prize to winner). Songwriters submit a Psalm-based song by an October due date. The winner is announced and the song is premiered in worship in January (if possible, the same weekend as Symposium). Church of the Servant is a Christian Reformed Church with a rich history of encouraging the arts in worship. Its worship is Reformed, liturgical, participatory, eclectic, and open to creative new worship expressions. See https://www.churchoftheservantcrc.org.

Worship theme

Isaiah was given one tough assignment by the Lord God of Israel. Isaiah was commissioned to preach, as all prophets were, but in Isaiah's case, God assured him up front that the better he preached, the less people would listen. The people's ignoring and even spurning of Isaiah's sermons would serve as a sign against them that the judgment God was sending was just and altogether warranted. Isaiah's was a stern message of judgment but scattered throughout even the first half of the book are lyric passages of hope. However, the second part of Isaiah contains words of encouragement and hope that pile up in lovely ways.

We will use some of those later texts of Isaiah in our worship to remind ourselves that although our God is a God of justice, God is also the font of all grace and all hope. It was a comforting message for Israel and is no less a source of unending joy in the New Israel, the Church of Christ Jesus our Lord.

Learning about the interplay of freedom and form . . .

In our work at the Calvin Institute of Christian Worship and the Center for Excellence in Preaching, we are eager to draw deeply from Bible-shaped wisdom of classic Christian liturgies throughout the centuries, and to express that wisdom through a sampling of the wide variety of cultural, musical, and artistic forms used in congregations around the world. This pastoral task involves a challenging interplay of freedom and form, of bringing to expression a deep unity-in-diversity, diversity-in-unity.

Over the past year, we’ve become aware again of how many communities—all over the world—are wrestling with this interplay of freedom and form. Jazz music features remarkable bursts of freedom, creativity, and soulful expression, but those bursts of freedom depend entirely on the common use of a well-crafted chord pattern, which each musician accepts as a kind of musical discipline. Likewise, the faithful, soulful expression of Christian worship is deeply strengthened when we accept spiritual and liturgical disciplines that are grounded in the gospel itself. Here is a brief, suggestive list of some of these key disciplines.

1. Begin liturgy with God’s words of greeting and invitation, and end with God’s words of charge and blessing, affirming that God’s words are the first and last word in worship and life.

2. Engage with God not only in praise and thanksgiving, but also in confession and lament—a reflection of the full spectrum of human experience and an acknowledgement that we live in the “already, but not yet” of God’s kingdom.

3. Throughout worship, feature the interplay of God’s words to us and our words to God—a covenantal conversation. This helps us experience and renew the promise-based baptismal relationship that God invites us into through Christ.

4. Include Trinitarian prayers which convey how we depend on the Holy Spirit to work in and through our praying, preaching, and participation in the sacraments, and how we cherish Jesus’ role as our only high priest, the perfect mediator of our prayers.
5. Dwell in scripture, Old Testament and New Testament, as it is read and preached, presenting and responding to God’s Word as an indispensable source of spiritual sustenance.

6. Stretch intercessory prayers to convey the breadth of God’s promised work in the world. What we pray for in public powerfully witnesses to what we believe God is doing and can do in the world. We signal trust in God when we pray for local and global concerns, for the environment and humanity, and for the church and culture, as well as individual concerns.

7. Participate deeply as God’s children gathered at Jesus’ table, where we celebrate a meal of memory, communion, and hope, a celebration of hospitality, justice, and covenant renewal.

8. Look for ways to strengthen participation and mutual service of young and old, seeker and lifelong believer, and people with a variety of gifts, abilities, and challenges.

9. View each action of worship as a formative, super-concentrated Christian practice that we echo and practice in our daily lives—practices that range from saying “I’m sorry” (confession) or “I’m listening” (illumination) or “peace be with you” (passing of the peace) or “What can I do?” (dedication). As “God’s language school,” liturgy teaches us ways of speaking to God and each other that lead us to be more faithful disciples of Jesus.

We pray that these disciplines may become a strong basis for faithful, imaginative, and soulful worship, used by God’s Spirit to strengthen the unity and vitality of our life together in Christ.

Learning about the complementary gifts of printed music, projected music, orally taught music...

Throughout the conference, we'll be singing some songs from printed notation, others from projected text and lyrics, others from projected text, and others that are led orally, without anything printed. During the past few years, we have noticed congregations rethinking how to do this best. Some churches that project everything have rediscovered the value of printing some things, as a way to encouraging singing with harmony or with greater introspection. Some churches that sing from only printed sources have discovered the value of projecting some things, as a way to encourage “hands free” singing. Churches of all kinds are learning to find good ways to assist worshipers with vision loss, who often are not able to read small print or see items projected on distant screens. We would love to learn what you are learning about this! Simply email worship@calvin.edu with your comments or insights.
Learning about universal design

We are so grateful to be learning with and from Barbara J. Newman and her colleagues at CLC (Christian Learning Center) Network as well as our Calvin College colleague Peggy Goetz about ways in which worship can be designed from the start to include people with a wide range of abilities and disabilities, gifts and limitations.

Our worship services this week may include:

- gluten free bread available at the celebration of the Lord's Supper
- use of the phrase “please rise, in body or spirit”
- use of large-print materials and/or availability of printed orders of service for use on various devices, especially for those who resize or change the contrast on their device
- availability of sign language upon request
- use of printed orders of service in several services, which supports those who worship best with a predictable schedule to follow
- monitoring of the overall volume of projected sound to support those who process sounds differently and at a magnified level
- flexible seating and ramps to worship spaces
- loop system for those with hearing devices (see page 4)
- planned multisensory options to best engage each participant such as:
  - availability of worship streamers for those who express their worship in movement
  - availability of hand tools for those who listen best when their hands are active
  - planned, optional movement within services for those who focus best with some physical action
  - visuals during the sermon

After these kinds of “universal design” elements are in place, many more people can find a home in worship. In fact, the group as a whole will benefit from the changes and additions, making them “universally” helpful. At times, additional adaptions are also helpful to strengthen the contributions of individuals with particular needs or challenges. Let us know how we can best welcome and serve you.

We welcome additional insights from you about ways that your church is practicing “universal design” for worship, as well as adapting to the unique strengths and challenges of individual worshipers. Email us at worship@calvin.edu with your ideas or suggestions.

Calvin College

Calvin College is a Christian academic community dedicated to rigorous intellectual inquiry. Calvin students study the liberal arts and select from a broad range of majors and professional programs. The college fosters scholarship that creates new knowledge, that performs creative work, and that sustains natural and cultural resources. A Calvin education, marked by scholarly engagement with enduring questions and emerging concerns, prepares students to answer God’s call to live and serve in God’s world as agents of renewal.

Calvin College does all this with a robust commitment to providing equal opportunities for all faculty, staff, and students. Calvin College was founded in 1876 by the Christian Reformed Church in North America and named for 16th-century reformer John Calvin. The historic creeds and confessions of Reformed Christianity guide the college’s understanding of scripture and inform its mission.

Calvin Theological Seminary

Founded in 1876, Calvin Theological Seminary is the oldest denominational ministry and the sole theological seminary of the Christian Reformed Church in North America, which is comprised of approximately 300,000 members in over 1,000 congregations across the United States and Canada. A majority of ordained ministers who serve in CRCNA congregations have received their primary theological education at CTS.

Yet nearly half of the students at CTS are from denominations other than the CRCNA. Close to 300 men and women come from over 40 different denominations from around the world to receive their theological education in one of the four Masters programs (M.Div., M.A., M.TS., Th.M.), the Doctor of Philosophy program (Ph.D.), or a variety of ecclesiastical certificate programs offered at CTS. With a focus on preparing students for biblical, authentic, contextual, and life-changing ministry rooted in historic Christianity, CTS provides a foundation that connects the best of the Reformed tradition with the contemporary ministry practices essential for tomorrow’s leaders.

- 291 students, with 43 participating in the distance learning program
- from 20 countries and more than 15 denominations and traditions
- 43% are international students
- 16% percent are African American, Hispanic, Asian, or Native American
The Calvin Symposium on Worship is grateful for the generous participation of our exhibitors who provide recommended resources from presenters as well as a wide range of publications and materials that enable thoughtful worship planning and leading.

On the tenth anniversary of the Calvin Institute of Christian Worship in 2007, we identified ten core principles and practices to present as our central convictions about vital Christian worship. We pray that these ten convictions have already been at the heart of our work so far, and we pledge that they will be even more formative for our institute in the work that lies ahead of us. And we hope our many ecumenical partners and contacts find them clear, compelling, and most of all enriching for their own worship and ministry.

These ten core convictions are not innovations. They are timeless truths from Scripture and the rich history of Christian worship. Today, each conviction remains theologically crucial, pastorally significant, and culturally threatened. The importance of one or all of these convictions risks being obscured by cultural trends outside the church, and disputes about the mechanics and style of worship within the church. This attempt to reiterate and reinforce the importance of these ten core convictions will lead, we pray, to more fruitful (if not necessarily easier) conversations about the meaning and practice of Christian worship.

These ten criteria are applicable not only in specific cultural settings. They have as much to say about corporate worship offered in Kenya or Korea as in Canada or the United States. They are the kind of questions that apply to contextual ministry in any setting.

They are also theological. They emerge not only out of historical study or aesthetic preference, but also out of reflection on the mystery of the gospel that Christians proclaim. Long-term vital worship doesn’t come out of singing a little faster, praying a little harder, or making worship a bit more proper or a bit more fun. Vital worship can issue only from the depth and mystery of the gospel that Christians proclaim. Christian worship is strongest when it is integrally and self-consciously related to the person and work of Jesus Christ and the power of the Holy Spirit.

Christian worship is immeasurably enriched by:

1. a vivid awareness of the beauty, majesty, mystery, and holiness of the triune God
   Worship cultivates our knowledge and imagination about who God is and what God has done. Worship gives us a profound awareness of the glory, beauty, and holiness of God. Each element of worship can be understood through a Trinitarian framework. Worship renewal is best sustained by attention to the triune God we worship.

2. the full, conscious, active participation of all worshipers, as a fully intergenerational community
   Worship is not just what ministers, musicians, and other leaders do; it is what all worshipers “do”—through the work of the Spirit in worship. In vital worship, all worshipers are involved in the actions, words, and meaning of worship.

   God's covenant promises endure “from generation to generation.” Worship that arises out of an intentionally intergenerational community, in which people of all ages are welcomed as full participants, and whose participation enriches each other, reflects that worship breaks down barriers of age.
3. deep engagement with scripture
The Bible is the source of our knowledge of God and of the world’s redemption in Christ. Worship should include prominent readings of Scripture, and engage worshipers through intentional reading practices, art, and music. It should present and depict God’s being, character, and actions in ways that are consistent with scriptural teaching. It should follow biblical commands about worship practices, and it should heed scriptural warnings about false and improper worship. In particular, Christian worship should be deeply connected to its ancient roots in psalmody.

4. joyful and solemn celebrations of baptism and the Lord’s Supper
The sacraments are physical signs of God’s nourishing action in creation through the Holy Spirit. In baptism God puts his covenant mark on his children, adopts them into the church, and calls them to a lifetime of dying and rising with Christ. In the Lord’s Supper, God physically and spiritually feeds his people. These celebrations are not just ceremonies, but gifts of grace and signs of God’s ongoing work.

5. an open and discerning approach to culture
Worship should strike a healthy balance among four approaches or dimensions to its cultural context: worship is transcultural (some elements of worship are beyond culture), contextual (worship reflects the culture in which it is offered), cross-cultural (worship breaks barriers of culture through worship), and counter-cultural (worship resists the idolatries of its cultural context).

6. disciplined creativity in the arts
Worship is enriched by artistic creativity in many genres and media, not as ends to themselves or as open-ended individual inspirations, but all disciplined by the nature of worship as a prophetic and priestly activity.

7. collaboration with all other congregational ministries
Congregational worship is mutually enriching to the full range of congregational ministries, including pastoral care, education, spiritual formation, and witness.

8. warm, Christ-centered hospitality for all people
A central feature of worship is that it breaks down barriers to welcome all worshipers, including persons with disabilities, those from other cultures, both seekers and lifelong Christians, and others.

9. intentional integration between worship and all of life
Worship fosters natural and dynamic connections between worship and life, so that the worship life of Christian congregations both reflects and shapes lives of grateful obedience, deeply engages with the needs of the world, including such specific areas as restorative justice, care for the earth, and many other areas.

10. collaborative planning and evaluation
Worship involves a collaborative process for planning and evaluating services in the context of an adaptive approach to overall congregational leadership.
The Calvin Institute of Christian Worship remembers with gratitude the lives of former presenters who blessed the Calvin Symposium on Worship with their gifts of knowledge, skill, and wisdom.

—Emily Brink, Symposium program director emeritus

Horace Clarence Boyer (1935–2009)
Horace Boyer was a singer, pianist, arranger, conductor, and one of the first African American scholars to formally study music of his heritage and introduce it to a wide audience. Son of a pastor, he toured already as a boy. For a time he was conductor of the famed Fisk Jubilee Singers, was professor of music at the University of Massachusetts, Amherst, and is especially remembered for his work as editor of Lift Every Voice and Sing II: An African American Hymnal and his book How Sweet the Sound: The Golden Age of Gospel Music. At Symposium 2000, he led us in worship and taught through his sessions on “Play Gospel” and “Sing Gospel.” We invited him back, hoping to learn more from him, but he became ill with cancer, and it prevented him from being able to return.

David R. Davidson (1948–2009)
David Davidson was an inspiring and consummate musician from Dallas, Texas, celebrated for his choral conducting and remembered especially for his promotion of the English handbell heritage in North America. In 1985 he became director of music at Highland Park Presbyterian Church; in 1994 he was named Director of the Dallas Symphony Chorus; in 2003 he became director of music and the arts at Highland Park United Methodist Church; and at Symposium 2004 he led both choral and handbell workshops. For many years he served on the national board of the American Guild of English Handbell Ringers (AGEHR; renamed Handbell Ringers of America in 2010) that resulted in many publications, workshops, and festivals across North America and also in Japan.

Edward Lee Doemland (1938–2012)
Not many who knew Ed as a jazz pianist, organist, and composer knew that back home in West Allis, Wisconsin, he was a high school chemistry teacher from 1963 until he retired, and on weekends, was organist at St. Peter’s Episcopal Church from 1963 until his death. Ed was more widely known through his long-time membership in the Hymn Society in the United States and Canada, especially after he used his own compositions to lead a jazz service of night prayer, along with hymn-writer friend Rae E. Whitney of Nebraska, at the annual conference of the Hymn Society in 2006. That service led us to invite them to lead a jazz vespers at the Calvin Symposium in 2008, an invitation that was repeated in 2009 and again in 2010. Some of his hymn arrangements were subsequently published in The Hymn.
Stanley Grenz (1950–2005)

Stanley Grenz was a leading evangelical theologian and author, known especially for his writing on postmodern evangelical theology and also for his growing interest in the emerging church movement. He was professor of theology at Carey Theological College, Vancouver, British Columbia, and of theological studies at Mars Hill Graduate School, Seattle, Washington. Stan liked to describe himself as a “pietist with a Ph.D.,” as someone who worked from a deep spirituality with intellectual rigor. His influential books included The Social God and the Relational Self: A Trinitarian Theology of the Imago Dei. At Symposium 2005 he was a presenter, as was his wife Edna, then minister of worship at First Baptist Church in Vancouver. Only two months later Stan died suddenly of a brain hemorrhage.

Howard G. Hageman (1921–1992)

Howard G. Hageman was a national leader of the Reformed Church in America. He was a pastor in Newark for 18 years, studying also at Princeton Seminary, where he was invited to deliver the prestigious Stone Lectures on Reformed worship. He then developed these lectures into the widely read book Pulpit and Table: Some Chapters in the History of Worship in the Reformed Churches. From 1973–1985 he served as president of New Brunswick Seminary in New Jersey. He also spearheaded the first independent hymnal for the Reformed Church, partnering with English pastor and hymnologist Erik Routley, Rejoice in the Lord was published in 1985. In retirement, he lectured widely, including speaking in 1991 at one of the early Calvin symposiums.

Donald H. Juel was a New Testament scholar and preacher who taught at Luther Seminary from 1978–1995, and at Princeton Theological Seminary from 1995 until his death in 2003 from a lung disorder. He was a passionate lecturer who was loved by students. He spoke at many conferences across the United States (including at Symposium in 1998), influencing thousands of pastors especially in their understanding of the Gospel of Mark, as found in his Messiah and Temple and Master of Surprise: Mark Interpreted. Shaping the Scriptural Imagination: Truth, Meaning, and the Theological Interpretation of the Bible is a collection of some of his essays and sermons compiled by grateful students.

Helen Kemp (1918–2015)

Helen Kemp was a legendary teacher, clinician, and composer who inspired countless children and children's choir directors across North America for more than two generations. She was known for her understanding of children's voices and how to encourage them to sing with excellence in worship; one of her famous sayings was “Body, Mind, Spirit, Voice! It takes the whole person to rejoice!” At Symposium 2004, already 86 years old, she led a demonstration choir of eager children in a seminar. She and her husband John helped give birth to the Choristers Guild, and they both taught at Westminster Choir College.
Christina Mandang (1972–2010)
Christina Mandang was the first church musician from Indonesia to earn a graduate degree in organ. She returned from study in the Netherlands to become professor of church music and choir director at Jakarta Theological Seminary. After learning of her work, when members of the Calvin Institute of Christian Worship participated in an Indonesian symposium on worship in 2006, she was invited to be a presenter at Symposium 2007. She was also a presenter as part of the worship planning team for the inaugural assembly of the international World Communion of Reformed Churches that took place at Calvin College in June 2010. Tragically, on Saturday, June 27, 2010, shortly after she had played piano and organ for the closing service, she was struck by a car and died early Sunday morning. Since then, Calvin Institute of Christian Worship staff members have returned twice to participate in continuing worship conferences in Indonesia.

Paul Manz (1919–2009)
Paul Manz is remembered as an organist, prolific composer of organ and choral music for the church, and teacher of great influence. He led the music program at Mount Olive Lutheran Church in Minneapolis for 37 years, becoming the parish’s first cantor. For a time he was professor at Concordia College in St. Paul, Minnesota, but returned to parish work at Mt. Olive where he gave annual recitals. These often began and ended with the singing of a hymn, which people loved because of his improvisational skill and text interpretation. He then decided to prepare an entire program of hymns, launching the thematic hymn festival approach that became greatly loved, preserved in recordings, and served as a model now known throughout the world. Throughout his career he received numerous awards, from his study in Belgium with Flor Peeters on a Fulbright grant, to twice being named one of the “Ten Most Influential Lutherans” and one of the “101 Most Influential Organists of the Twentieth Century.” He was a presenter at an early Calvin symposium.

Bert Polman (1945–2013)
Bert Polman described himself as a hymnologist. It fit him well, since he devoted his life to the study and practice of congregational song. Although he lost his own voice in 1975 and could speak only in a whisper, his voice carried far through his writing, teaching, editing of five hymnals, and especially through his commitment to the biblical psalms and call to justice that leads to shalom. He was co-author of the Psalter Hymnal Handbook and wrote several hymns, including “God, We Sing Your Glorious Praises,” composed for the 150th anniversary of the Christian Reformed Church in 2007. Bert taught at Ontario Bible College and Redeemer Christian University before coming to Calvin College in 2005, where he chaired the music department and was a fellow in the Calvin Institute of Christian Worship. He spoke many times at various symposia, and was always appreciated for his wisdom, wit, and gentle humor.
Carl ("Chip") L. Stam (1953–2011)
Chip Stam was a frequent speaker at Symposium, attending regularly even when not presenting. He came out of his warm-hearted love and passion for the worship and music of the church, which developed into a close relationship with the Calvin Institute of Christian Worship. Chip had been director of choral music at Notre Dame University and pastor of worship and music at Chapel Hill Bible Church before moving to Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in 2000, where he became the founding director of their Institute for Christian Worship. One of Chip’s best loved legacies was his “Worship Quote of the Week,” an on-line devotional that mined the wisdom of church leaders throughout Christian history in ways to challenge Christians today. His contagious joy was present even when wearing a back brace the last time he was able to be present at Symposium, during his four-year battle with non-Hodgkin’s Lymphoma.

Dale Topp (1937–2014)
Dale Topp taught music education for 35 years at Calvin College, reaching more than a generation of future teachers with his conviction that everyone should have the joy of music making in their lives. His enthusiasm was legendary, and his popular “Music and Community” classes demonstrated an interactive music-making approach and moved his students from the campus into underserved neighborhoods. He also introduced his pedagogy at Symposium, he served as president of the Michigan Music Educators Association for two years, and his six years as Calvin’s music department chair was a time of significant growth, described by one colleague as a “golden age.”

Robert E. Webber (1933–2007)
Bob Webber was a bridge builder, one of the first evangelical theologians to write about worship in the early church and the liturgical tradition. His Call to an Ancient Evangelical Future was, in a way, the culmination of a lifetime of teaching and writing that was devoted to helping the Christian church take worship seriously. He was a long-time popular professor at Wheaton College from 1968 until he retired. He then moved to Northern Seminary in Lombard, Illinois, and in 1998 initiated what is now the Robert E. Webber Institute for Worship Studies in Jacksonville, Florida, a doctoral program that continues to attract students from around the world. He published more than 40 books on worship; including popular titles like Worship Is a Verb and Ancient Future Worship, and edited the eight-volume Complete Library of Christian Worship. He was a presenter at Symposium in 1989 and again in 2004, when he led sessions on “Ancient-Future Justice” and “Ancient-Future Worship.” For many years Bob was also a valuable editorial consultant to Reformed Worship until his death from cancer in 2007.

Share Your Stories of Inclusion

How does your church include persons with disabilities in corporate worship? The CLC Network and Calvin Institute of Christian Worship invite you to submit your story of including persons with disabilities in a corporate worship setting, so that we may learn together.

What does “corporate worship” mean?
We invite you to submit stories of individuals included in congregational singing, communion, prayer, baptism, and other such corporate events (as opposed to small groups or Sunday school classes). We desire stories of people at all ages—children, youth, and adults—in separate or intergenerational settings.

We care about confidentiality
In order to protect individuals and maintain confidentiality, we will change all names in the stories (you are also welcome to use different names). By submitting your story (1-2 pages), you are allowing us to use the information to learn and to share with other congregations.

- Congregational information
  - Location
  - Denomination
  - Number of members or attendees in the community
- Individual information
  - Age of individual(s) with disabilities
  - Individual’s gifts and abilities, areas of struggle

Story content
State the worship event (corporate singing, communion, prayer, baptism, sermon, children’s message, responsive reading, preparing to be part of the worship setting, etc.)

- What did you try in the situation?
- What worked? Was it effective?
- What did not go well? Was it ineffective?

Thank you for being willing to share your experiences so that other faith communities can learn and grow from these collective experiences.

MAKOTO FUJIMURA
NEW DIRECTOR OF THE BREHM CENTER AT FULLER SEMINARY

Fuller’s Brehm Center for Worship, Theology, and the Arts welcomes our new director Mako Fujimura: master painter, devoted believer, and visionary craftsperson of “culture care.” His leadership brings together kindred spirits, enabling us to broaden and deepen our work in the creative integration of art, worship, and culture. We look forward to collaborating in this new chapter with the Calvin Institute of Christian Worship, a kindred spirit whose excellent work we applaud.

WORSHIP: A SIGNPOST FOR SHALOM

Cornelius Plantinga, Calvin Theological Seminary’s President Emeritus, describes the biblical vision of shalom as “universal flourishing, wholeness, and delight—a rich state of affairs in which natural needs are satisfied and natural gifts fruitfully employed." Shalom, he observes, “inspires joyful wonder as its Creator and Savior opens doors and welcomes the creatures in whom he delights.”

Calvin Seminary aims to be a nurturing home for shalom—a hospitable community of learning and probing, of prayer and worship.
